If the Software was pre-installed on your computer or disks came packaged with your computer at no extra charge, and if you do not agree with this Agreement, do not use the Software.

You may transfer the Software to a third party, or sell the computer on which the Software is installed to a third party, provided you do not keep a copy of the Software for yourself. You or the purchaser may obtain a copy of a transfer agreement from Intuit, which will allow the purchaser to assume your rights as a purchaser of the Software.

Satisfaction Guaranteed If you are not satisfied with this Software, Intuit's entire liability and your exclusive remedy shall be either of the following. To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, Intuit and its licensors disclaim all other representations and warranties and conditions, express or implied, regarding this Software, disk(s), related materials and any services, including their fitness for a particular purpose, their quality, their merchantability, or their noninfringement. Intuit does not warrant that the Software is free from bugs, viruses, errors, or other program limitations, nor does Intuit warrant access to the internet or any other service through the Software. No oral or written information or advice given by Intuit and its licensors, their respective employees, distributors, dealers or agents shall increase the scope of the above representations, warranties or conditions or create any new warranties.

Some provinces may not allow the exclusion of implied warranties and conditions so the above exclusions may not apply to you. In that event, any implied warranties or conditions are limited in duration to ninety (90) days from the date of purchase of the Software. However, some provinces do not allow limitations on how long an implied warranty lasts, so the above limitation may not apply to you. This warranty gives you specific legal rights, and you may have other rights as well, which vary from province to province.

Limitation of Liability and Damages

The entire and sole liability of Intuit for any reason shall be limited to the amount paid by the customer for the Software purchased from Intuit or its authorized reseller. To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, Intuit and its subsidiaries, affiliates, licensors, participating financial institutions, third-party content or service providers, distributors, dealers or suppliers ("representatives") are not liable for any indirect, special, incidental, or consequential damages (including, but not limited to: damages for loss of business, loss of profits or investment, or the like), whether based on breach of contract, breach of warranty, tort (including negligence), product liability or otherwise, even if Intuit or its representatives have been advised of the possibility of such damages, and even if a remedy set forth herein is found to have failed of its essential purpose. Intuit and its representatives' total liability to you for actual damages for any cause whatsoever will be limited to the amount paid by you for this Software. Some provinces do not allow the limitation and/or exclusion of liability for incidental or consequential damages, so the above limitation or exclusion may not apply to you.

The limitations of damages set forth above are fundamental elements of the basis of the bargain between Intuit and you. Intuit would not be able to have provided this product or services without such limitations.

General Provisions

This Agreement sets forth Intuit's and its Representatives' entire liability and your exclusive remedy with respect to the Software. You acknowledge that this Agreement is a complete statement of the agreement between you and Intuit, and that there are no other prior or contemporaneous understandings, promises, representations, or descriptions regarding the Software or any related services. This Agreement does not limit any rights that Intuit may have under trade secret, copyright, patent, trademark or other laws. The Representatives of Intuit are not authorized to make modifications to this Agreement, or to make any additional representations, commitments, or warranties binding on Intuit, other than in writing signed by an officer of Intuit. Accordingly, such additional statements are not binding on Intuit and you should not rely upon such statements. If any provision of this Agreement is invalid or unenforceable under applicable law, then it is, to that extent, deemed omitted and the remaining provisions will continue in full force and effect. The validity and performance of this Agreement shall be governed by Alberta law (without reference to choice of law principles), except as to copyright and trademark matters, which are covered by Canadian federal laws and international treaties. This Agreement is deemed entered into at Edmonton, Alberta, and shall be construed as to its fair meaning and not strictly for or against either party.

This Software may contain dated information. Use of the Software is based on your understanding that this Software may not include all the information or the most current information relevant to your particular needs or situation.

If you have any questions concerning this Agreement, you may contact Intuit by writing to Intuit Canada Limited, P.O. Box 4182, Edmonton, Alberta T6E 5G6, Attn: Legal Department.

Export Restrictions

You acknowledge and agree that the Software is subject to restrictions and controls imposed by the Export and Import Permits Act (Canada) and Regulations under the Export and Import Permits Act (the "Acts") as well as by the United States Export Administration Act and Export Administration Regulations. You agree and certify that neither the Software nor any direct product thereof is being or will be acquired, shipped, transferred or exported, directly or indirectly, outside Canada (other than to the United States) or will be used for any purpose prohibited by the Acts; provided, however, that any person may travel to countries not prohibited by the Acts for a period of three months with the Software when it is installed on their personal computer and not otherwise used or transferred in violation of the Acts.

Consumer Information

Intuit will gather end user registration, online financial services usage (e.g., the type of online service used, but not transaction detail), Quicken Software version, hardware and Internet service provider information. This information will be used to notify customers and make decisions about support, product and business issues. Where can I learn more?

THIS MANUAL This manual explains how to use Quicken to achieve your financial goals. Each chapter covers a key financial area, with descriptions of how Quicken features can help you achieve your goals in that area. On the side of most pages, you'll also find short procedures on how to get started.

STEP-BY-STEP PROCEDURES Use Quicken Help for quick instructions on a specific task. From the Help menu, choose Index and then type the name of the subject area you need help with. The bottom part of the window displays all the Help topics related to that task. Click to highlight the one you want, and then click Display.

HOW DO I You can click "How do I?" in most Quicken windows to see a list of tasks you can perform from the current window. In most windows, you can also press the F1 key on your computer keyboard for information on the current window.

ONSCREEN MANUAL The Onscreen Manual describes how Quicken features work together and provides ideas for using them. It also has links directly to the step-by-step instructions in Help. From the Help menu, choose Onscreen Manual.

USER'S GUIDE The Quicken 2000 User's Guide introduces you to Quicken's key features. It provides a brief overview of each one and detailed procedures that will get you started with Quicken.

SHOW ME VIDEOS Trying out a feature you've never used before? The Show Me videos can walk you through the basics. From the Help menu, choose Show Me Videos to see a list of topics. (CD-ROM required.)

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS The Quicken Product Support team may have an answer to your question. From the Help menu, choose Product Support and then click Go to Web. (You must have Internet access.)

“How can I
save time?”

Quicken can help reduce your data entry to almost nothing.

Keeping your transactions current in Quicken is important. It doesn't take a lot of time once you know a few tips and tricks. Like how to use QuickEntry to enter transactions in your register, or how to download your credit card statement and schedule events. Take a tour of Quicken's best time savers. You'll be up-to-date in no time at all.

To schedule a transaction

From the Finance menu, choose Calendar. In the Financial Calendar's transaction list, click to select the transaction you want to schedule for recurring payments, and then drag it to a date on the calendar. If you are entering a new transaction, click and drag the entry marked "Use this for a NEW one!"

Tony has been using Quicken for several years. He uses the register and categorizes his transactions so he can create reports. He upgrades regularly, but hasn't really investigated the new time-saving features or even the quick little tricks that streamline entering transactions and tracking his money.

If you are like Tony, and want a quick refresher course in some Quicken features (old and new), review these next few pages. Then try out some of the tricks at the end of the chapter.

Speed up your bill paying

Chances are, the bills you need to pay each month don't all arrive in your mailbox on the same day. These bills trickle in and you try to pay each one in a timely fashion. To save time and effort, you can have Quicken schedule these transactions.

Schedule your transactions

When you schedule a transaction, you enter the details of the bill and tell Quicken:

- When to make the next payment.
- How often to make future payments.

When the scheduled transaction comes due, you pay the bill the usual way, with a handwritten cheque, a printed cheque, or a direct withdrawal. You can schedule a transaction even if your payment amount varies from month to month.

Quicken alerts you to important changes

When you set up an alert, Quicken lets you know when certain conditions or limits are met in one of your accounts. From the Finance menu, choose Alerts, and then click the appropriate tab. The following are some of the alert types you can create here:

- Minimum or maximum account balances
- Credit card limits
- Important tax dates and personalized tax alerts
- Stock price limits
- Key investment news

1. Select an account alert

Account Max. Balances ☐

Account Min. Balances ☒

Credit Card Limits ☐

Cheque Reorder Notice ☐

Monthly Expenses ☐

Savings Goals ☐

2. Enter values for account minimum balances

Bank Account Name	Min. Balance	Remind Me At
Chequing	500.00	600.00

This alert notifies you when an account is close to the minimum amount (Remind Me At), and again when it reaches the minimum amount.

A ✓ means the alert is turned on. Click the checkbox to turn the alert off.

OK Cancel Apply Help

Tony can set alerts in any of these areas.

Tony can have Quicken let him know when he's reached a spending limit on any category he selects here.

Where will I see my Quicken reminders?

Quicken displays your scheduled transactions, alerts, and reminders in the following places:

My Finances Centre The My Finances Centre displays scheduled transactions, calendar notes, and alerts about important changes.

Billminder™ Billminder can display our Quicken reminders when you start Windows, whether or not you open Quicken.

Quicken Reminders window Your reminders can be displayed in the Reminders window. These include scheduled transactions (bills to pay, cheques to print), calendar notes, and alerts about important changes.

Enter transactions without launching Quicken

On days when your only task is entering transactions, use Quick Entry. This “mini-application” opens quickly and displays only your account registers. From your Windows desktop, double-click the QuickEntry icon. From the Account menu, choose an account, and then enter the transactions as usual. The next time you open Quicken, it prompts you to accept the transactions.

Quicken remembers what you enter

Let’s say you entered a payment to your local newspaper, The Tribune. Next month, when you enter the first few letters of The Tribune in the register, Quicken recalls your previous transaction and automatically enters all the information. You can change any of the data Quicken enters, if you need to, and then record the transaction. These are called memorized transactions.

You can set options so that Quicken memorizes and recalls transactions in a way that works for you.

Quicken adds to the memorized transaction list whenever you enter a transaction with a new payee. As the list grows, you may want to clean out the entries you rarely use.

For instance, you might have 15 or 20 transactions to payees beginning with the letter “T,” but you may only need to pay one or two of these payees on a regular basis. Clean out the entries you don’t use very often. You’ll end up typing fewer characters to get what you really want.

Stop writing all those deposit slips

- Have your pay cheque deposited directly into your bank account. Many employers offer this service. Also, many banks provide services for free, like chequing, when you use direct deposit.

To trim your Memorized Transaction list

From the Banking menu, choose Memorized Transaction List. To delete a memorized transaction, select it on the list and then click Delete.

Deleting a memorized transaction from this list doesn’t remove it from any of your Quicken registers. It just won’t appear on the list of memorized transactions to choose from.

To use Online Banking

From the Banking menu, choose Online Banking Setup, and then select the account you want to set up. To see if your financial institution offers online service with Quicken, from the Finance menu, choose Online Financial Institutions List. You can usually apply right away, either over the Internet or by phone. Your financial institution will provide a PIN and specific information for you to enable your Quicken accounts to use this service.

Note

Before you can download transactions, you need at least one account set up in Quicken.

Automate your banking activities

You don't need to manually enter your cheques, ATM withdrawals and deposits, or credit or charge card transactions in your Quicken account registers. Instead, you can save time and typing mistakes by accessing your account information online. You do this by using the online account access service from your home, office, or even when you're travelling.

The screenshot displays the Quicken Online Banking interface. At the top, there is a 'Financial Institution:' dropdown menu set to 'TD Access', a bank icon, and buttons for 'Process Transactions...', 'Update/Send...', and 'Complete to Register...'. Below this is a 'Transactions' tab. A summary row shows 'Dean's Chequing' with 37 transactions and an online balance of 9,485.54. A table below lists individual transactions with columns for Date, Num, Payee/Description, Payment, and Deposit.

Date	Num	Payee/Description	Payment	Deposit
6/18/99		Ed's Garage	146.08
6/22/99		Diane Schneider		143.40
6/22/99		Mike's Audio	34.92

6/23/99		Hornby's Furniture		44.83
6/29/99	2651	Robyn Margaret	100.98

The online account access service is offered through Quicken in conjunction with a variety of financial institutions, including banks, credit and charge card companies, and brokerage firms. You can use it with chequing, savings, money market, and credit or charge card accounts. Contact your bank or visit their web site to see whether your financial institution currently offers this service.

You apply for service with your financial institution, then enable your Quicken accounts to use it. You can apply at multiple financial institutions and use multiple accounts.

Download your latest account information

Connect through the Internet to download your recent cleared transactions and online balances from your financial institution (usually as of the previous business day).

Comparing downloaded transactions

After you download your transactions, compare them to those you entered in your account register. Quicken automatically matches the cleared transactions to those you entered, and notes new transactions you can use to update your register. This comparing and matching process makes reconciling a breeze. When you reconcile the account, the cleared transactions have already been checked off. There's hardly any work left for you to do.

Speed up your entry of credit card transactions

You can download and compare your credit card transactions, just as you would transactions from a bank or other financial institution. In most cases, Quicken even adds the merchant names and categories for you. Downloading transactions as they clear is the easiest way to track your credit card balances.

To set up your pay cheque

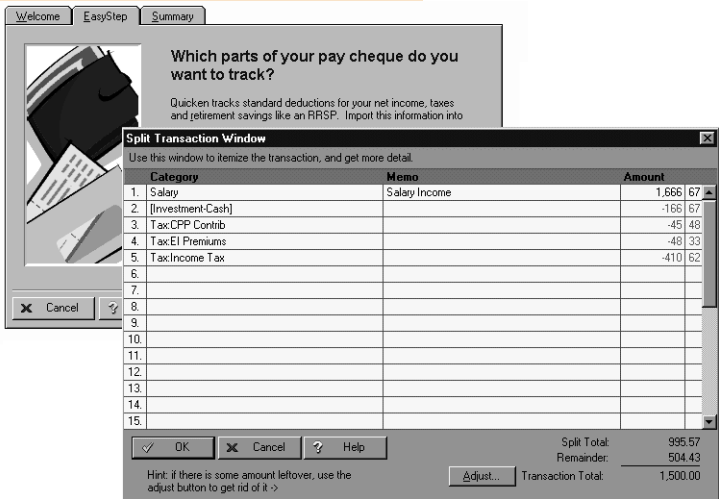

From the Banking menu, choose Banking Activities and then Set Up Pay Cheque.

Track your earnings and investments

Enter your pay cheque

If you'd like to track the deductions from your pay cheque such as taxes and RRSP contributions, take a look at Quicken's EasyStep Pay Cheque. You can track all or just some of the deductions.

Once you've set up your pay cheque, you can have Quicken enter it in your register automatically at the interval you set: weekly, every other week or monthly, for instance.

Enter all the information you'd like to track in the EasyStep Pay Cheque windows.

Quicken creates a split transaction in your chequing register. You can have Quicken enter it for you automatically on payday.

You can easily edit this transaction, if the amounts change.

Track your RRSP or RPP

Quicken's EasyStep RRSP tool helps you set up and track your RRSP or RPP. You can follow the value and performance of your RRSP or RPP accounts to make sure you are on track for a comfortable retirement. For details about this feature and information about retirement accounts, see "Contribute to retirement accounts" on page 36.

Track your brokerage firm account information

You can keep your Quicken investment register up to date by downloading account information—a service offered in conjunction with participating brokerage firms. With online investment tracking, you can:

- Download the latest investment transactions, online account balances, and holdings from your brokerage firm (usually from the previous business day).
- Automatically compare the downloaded transactions to those already in your register. Quicken matches downloaded transactions to those you've entered and notes new transactions that you can use to update your register. If a transaction is a "near-match," you can correct it before or after you accept it into your register.
- If your brokerage firm account allows chequing privileges, automatically download your chequing transactions at the same time that you download investment transactions.
- Even trade directly with your financial institutions using links to Web sites from within the Investing Centre.

The Transactions tab displays your investment transactions with the price, quantity, and amount recorded by your brokerage firm.

The screenshot shows the 'Transactions' tab in Quicken. At the top, it says 'Cleared transactions downloaded on 6/15/99 9:00:00 PM'. Below this is a summary table with columns: Account, Transactions, and Online Balance. The account is 'Karen's investment account' with 10 transactions and an online balance of N/A. Below the summary is a detailed table of transactions with columns: Date, Activity, Description, Price, Quantity, and Amount. The transactions include purchases of Vanguard Windsor Mutual Fund, Halley Davidson, and Land's End, as well as dividends and deposits.

Account	Transactions	Online Balance

To use Online Investing

From the Investing menu, choose Online Investing Setup, and then choose the account you want to set up. To see if your broker offers this service, from the Finance menu, choose Online Financial Institutions List. You can usually apply right away, over the Internet or by phone. Your financial institution will send you a PIN and information to enable your Quicken accounts for online service.

Use transaction forms for investments

Entering investment transactions is easy and fast when you use EasyActions forms. Tony just bought 100 shares of Intuit stock. To record this transaction, he opens his investment register and clicks EasyActions. He chooses Buy / Add Shares to enter his purchase.

Quicken's Easy Actions forms step you through tasks like buying, selling, reinvesting, and transferring cash in or out of the account.

To use WebEntry

Use WebEntry to enter Quicken transactions on any computer that is connected to the Web. Just use the transaction entry form on the Quicken.com WebEntry page. The next time you open Quicken, download the transactions (click the Online button) and accept the new transactions into Quicken (from the Banking menu, choose Banking Activities, and the Accept remote transactions).

How can I use Quicken when I'm away from home?

Portfolio Export Upload your Quicken investment portfolio to the Web, where you can track it from any computer connected to the Web, anytime, anywhere. For more information, from the Help menu, choose Index, and enter portfolio export.

Quicken Reminder Export Upload your Quicken reminders to the Web. For more information, from the Help menu, choose Index, and enter exporting, reminders to Quicken.com.

Enter personal, financial and legal information into major areas, such as emergency information, personal and legal documents, and home/auto/property. Quicken provides comprehensive lists of items that you may want to organize and record. Fill in as much or as little as you find useful.

You can create reports that include just a subset of the information, such as an emergency situation report that would be given to a spouse, attorney, or next of kin at the time of an emergency or death. You'll find the reports useful to give your baby-sitter, your lawyer or your spouse. You can also create a complete report that lists all the details you've entered in the Emergency Records Organizer.

To get started, enter information about yourself and then your family members. Next, enter any legal documents, followed by whatever information you feel is important.

To start the Address Book

From the Finance menu, choose Address Book.

Addresses you've already entered in Quicken (at the Write Cheques window) are added to the Address Book automatically.

Enter the information about a document as soon as you receive it or change something in it. Make updating your records part of the process so that you're not really finished until you've entered the information in Quicken.

In an emergency, you'll have immediate access to the information and the location of documents you need. Not only will this feature save you time, it may reduce your stress as well.

TIP

Remember to back up your Quicken data regularly and store a backup copy outside your home.

Keep important addresses in one place

The Quicken Address Book is a great tool for organizing and storing the addresses you need when you're paying bills or doing other financial activities. The Address Book creates a central list of addresses that you can sort, search, group, and print. You can add addresses of friends, family members, business associates, and clients.

“Where does all of our money go?”

You work hard for your money, so you should have a clear idea of where it goes each month. What's the first step?

Take a look at the whole picture. You may have a vague idea of where you stand financially—perhaps you have that sinking feeling that you're spending more than you're taking in each month. Knowing the details can really help. We all have goals and dreams, but if our spending habits are taking us down a different path, we need to change course.

To view the Planning Centre

From the Planning menu, choose Planning Centre.

Figuring out your net worth is a good start. Your net worth is the value of all the items you own (your assets) minus the amount you owe (your liabilities). In other words, if you sold everything, all of your assets, for cash, and paid all of your debts with that cash, what would be left? That's your net worth.

Quicken's Planning Centre can help you figure out your net worth in no time at all.

Viewing the snapshot of your net worth on a regular basis is like a checkup for your financial health. It can show you:

- How much debt you've accumulated.
- How quickly (or slowly) your savings and investments are growing.
- How easily you could handle a sudden financial emergency, like expensive roof repairs or a new transmission for your car.

Adding up your assets

Quicken figures the positive side of your net worth by adding up the assets you've entered into Quicken. Start by setting up:

- A separate Quicken account for each real-world account, including cash on hand.

For example, set up a savings account to track the money you've put away in savings, a chequing account, and so on.

- An asset account to track the equity in your home.

You can use this asset account to track home improvements. These improvements may add to the resale value of your home. For details on tracking home expenses, see "Can we afford a new home?" on page 47.

Jody and Bill's asset account, called "Our House," shows the current value of their home, including improvements.

Our House: Asset ($)

<input type="checkbox"/> Chequing	<input type="checkbox"/> Business Bills	<input type="checkbox"/> Liability	<input type="checkbox"/> Our House

- An investment account to track your RRSP or RPP.

Quicken's EasyStep helps you set up and track the value and performance of your RRSP. For details about RRSPs and RPPs and how to track them in Quicken, see "Contribute to retirement accounts" on page 36.

To track other types of investments, Quicken has two options:

- To track just the value of your investments, set up an asset account. For example, asset accounts are ideal for tracking GICs, Treasury bills, and fixed annuities.

To set up a new account

From the Finance menu, choose Account List and then click New.

To set up an asset account, choose Asset as the account type and then follow the EasyStep instructions to set up the account.

When you write a cheque for home improvement, create a transfer in the category field from your chequing account to an asset account to track your home's value.

In this asset account, Bill and Jody's equity increased $6,387.75 when they wrote a cheque for the work that Del Greco Construction did. The transfer between Quicken accounts automatically added this value to their asset account. Your equity is equal to the home's value less what you owe on it.

To set up and track your RRSP or RPP

From the Investing menu, choose Investing Activities and then Track RRSP.

- To track not only the value but also the performance of your investments, set up an investment account.

You can set up a Quicken account for almost any type of real world investment. For details on tracking investments, see “How should we invest for retirement?” on page 59.

Identifying your liabilities

In Quicken, you track your debts in credit card and liability accounts. You should set up:

- Separate credit card accounts for each credit card.

Credit card debt is a liability when you are calculating net worth.

- Separate liability accounts to track each debt.

For instance you might want to set up a liability account to track:

- How much you owe on your mortgage.
- How much you owe on your car loan.

To know the actual value of what you own and what you owe, set up a pair of accounts—an asset account to track the value of your asset (for example your van is $12,000) and a liability account to track your debt (let’s say you still owe $4,000). The difference between what you own and what you owe is $8,000.

Calculating your net worth

Quicken calculates net worth by adding the balance of your checking, savings, cash, asset and investment accounts and then subtracting the balances of your credit card and liability accounts from this amount.

TIP

Look carefully at the assets you include in your net worth. If you wouldn't sell your car or your grandmother's silverware to get cash quickly, don't include these in your net worth. However, you do need to know their value so you can keep them properly insured.

On the other hand, if you have an asset that you consider part of your net worth, but haven't entered it in Quicken, do create a "summary" asset account so that Quicken includes it in your net worth calculation.

Checking your cash flow

Are you surprised at the total on your net worth report? Do you want to dig a little deeper and see where your money goes each month?

Jody and Bill have entered one month's worth of expenses. Here's a report on their cash flow.

To create a report on a category

In your register, select a transaction with the category you want to report on (in this case, it’s Dining). Click the report button on the register button bar and choose Amount Spent on Dining.

Your net worth is a snapshot of an instant in time. Cash flow, on the other hand, covers a period of time, not just an instant. Once you’ve entered a few months of transactions, you may want to look for patterns in your spending—the “flow.”

Jody and Bill want to take a look at how much they spend on dining. Quicken creates a category report that displays all the transactions assigned to the Dining category.

Are you covering the bases?

Emergency reserves

Your net worth report includes all assets and liabilities. You should also check that you have enough put aside for an emergency to cover unexpected expenses. You should have an emergency reserve of at least three months of living expenses.

Create another net worth report, but this time only include the accounts that contain liquid assets you can cash in, such as a money market fund account, chequing and savings accounts, or shorter-term liabilities like a car loan.

When your income changes or is at risk, you need greater reserves. If you don't have family or friends you can turn to for financial help, plan on putting aside six months of earnings in an emergency reserve fund.

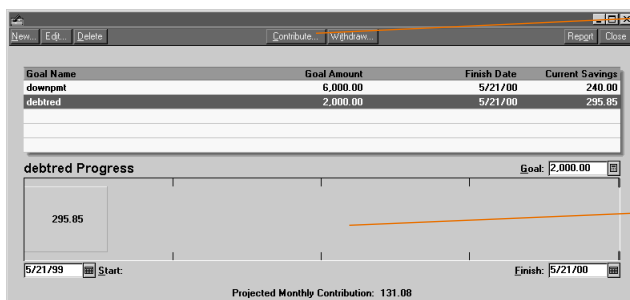

To estimate how much you need, create a budget for the period you want to cover. When you create a new budget, you can have Quicken fill it in, based on the information you entered in your Quicken registers. For details on budgeting, see "First take a snapshot" on page 32.

Keep the reserve in a liquid account you can access without penalty. Consider depositing funds in a money-market account or a cashable GIC.

Planning to save

Quicken can help you get started on a savings program. You can create a savings goal, which lets you "hide" money for a special purpose. Although the money is really in your bank account, you mark it as unavailable for other spending.

When you create a savings goal, Quicken automatically creates a savings goal account to track how much money you've contributed to your goal.

To create a customized net worth report

From the Reports menu, choose EasyAnswer Reports and Graphs and then "What am I worth?" Click Show Report and then click Customize.

On the Customize Net Worth Report, click the Accounts tab. Select the account that contains your liquid assets and short term debts.

Memorize the report and name it something like "liquid assets."

To create a budget

From the Planning menu, choose Budgeting.

To transfer money to your savings goal, click here.

Although the money remains in your real-world account, it's hidden from you when you look at your account balances in Quicken.

Check your progress here.

To start Quicken Home Inventory

From the Household menu, choose Quicken Home Inventory.

If this is the first time you've used Quicken Home Inventory, you have to create a data file. To create a data file, select New from the File menu, enter a filename, then click Save.

Insurance coverage

Take a look at your insurance coverage on your life, your car and your home. How can you be sure you have adequate coverage? If you've entered all your furnishings, home equipment, and other valuables in Quicken Home Inventory, create an insurance coverage summary report to see a summary listing of all your belongings and their values. Then compare the value of your belongings with your insurance coverage. For details on insurance or Quicken Home Inventory, see "Figuring out the value of what you own" on page 54.

Requesting a credit report

Now that you have an idea of how much you owe and where your money goes, another valuable source of information about where you stand financially is your credit report. Your income and credit history are very important when you apply for credit. Call your bank for details on obtaining a credit report.

If you apply for a loan, the lender is interested in the number and types of credit accounts you have, how much you owe on your active accounts, how well you repay your debts and when your newest accounts were opened. Lenders also want to know how long you've lived at your present address and held your present job. Some of this information comes from your credit application and some comes from your credit report. In addition, it's a good idea to get a copy of your credit report if you:

- Are applying for a mortgage or other loan, purchasing insurance, applying for a new job, or applying to rent or lease property.
- Are disputing an item you've charged on a credit card. You should make sure that your refusal to pay is noted in your credit report.
- Have been refused credit on the basis of a negative credit report.

- Want to make sure that no one has opened an account in your name.
- Haven't checked your credit within the past year.

“How can I keep more
of my money?”

At the end of the month, do you wish you had a few extra dollars to invest or stash in savings? Here's information on how to save more and spend wisely.

Take a quick look at last month's cheque register. Are credit card payments taking a big chunk of your available cash? One sure-fire way to start saving is to stop borrowing. Instead of using your credit cards, pay cash or write a cheque. Of course, if you use credit cards to accumulate frequent flier mileage (or some other perk) and you pay them off each month, you are well on your way to careful spending.

You probably know if you have problems with your credit, but here are a few warning signs to look for:

- You only make the minimum payments on your cards each month.
- You've taken on a part-time job to make ends meet.
- You can't pay all your bills on time.
- You're paying for your groceries with a credit card—out of necessity and not choice.
- You couldn't handle a financial emergency, like a new water heater, unless you used a credit card.

Paying attention pays off

Example Tina has some credit card debt as well as a mortgage and a car loan. She'd like to start an investment plan, but first she wants to reduce her debt. She plans to stop using her credit cards and get out of debt as quickly as she can. Tina can set up credit card accounts in Quicken to track all her charges carefully. She can also run the Debt Reduction Planner to create a plan for paying off her debts as soon as possible while paying the least amount of interest.

Watch those credit cards

It's so easy to slide that credit card across the sales counter. It doesn't feel like you're really spending money. How easily those charges can pile up. Quicken can help you track all those purchases.

To monitor her credit card spending, Tina can set up separate credit card accounts for each credit card she has. She'll reap these benefits:

- Her reports will be more complete and accurate (including her credit card debt in her cash flow reports).
- She can use categories to track the types of things she typically buys on credit (auto fuel, meals, and discretionary expenses).

- She can track all the balances she owes at any given time, as well as how much she is paying in interest charges and annual fees.
- She can automatically download and categorize credit transactions if her credit card account is with one of Intuit's participating financial institutions and she has online banking.
- She can set up an alert in Quicken to let her know when she's reaching her credit card account limits.

Quicken credit card accounts are similar to Quicken bank accounts. If you've used a Quicken bank account, you already know most of what you need to use a credit card account.

If you pay off your credit card in full each month, look for the card with the best perks and lowest annual fee.

If you can't pay your bill in full each month, look for a card with no annual fee and the lowest interest rate (and not just the lowest initial rate).

Reduce your debt

Quicken's Debt Reduction Planner can help Tina set up a payment plan so she'll pay the least amount in interest and be debt free as early as possible.

Quicken searches Tina's data for debts, such as liability accounts and credit card accounts, and sorts them, putting the most expensive debt at the top of the list. It's the one with the highest interest rate. She'll enter her current payment and the minimum she needs to pay. She can even add debts she doesn't track in

To create a credit card account

From the Finance menu, choose Account List, and then click New. Select Credit Card as the account type and click Next. Follow the EasyStep instructions to set up the account.

To set up a credit card Alert

From the Finance menu, choose Alerts. Click the Accounts tab and then select Credit Card Limits as the alert area.

To start the Debt Reduction Planner

From the Planning menu, choose Planning Centre, then in the Activities area, click "How do I get out of debt?"

Quicken, such as a loan from a friend, and include them in the plan.

Following the payment plan Quicken calculates, Tina pays off the most expensive loan first while paying the minimum on her other debts. (The Debt Reduction Planner also takes into account whether interest on a debt is tax deductible when it calculates a payment plan.) When Tina has paid off the most expensive debt, she'll take the money she had been paying on the first loan and add it to the minimum payment on the second debt. This means that even without increasing the amount she applies to her debts, she's still paying the least amount of interest.

Quicken analyzes Tina's debts and lists the order in which she should pay them off so that she'll pay the least amount of interest and be debt free in the shortest amount of time.

The screenshot shows the 'Debt Reduction' window in Quicken. It has tabs for 'Start', 'Debts', 'Order', 'Savings', 'Budget', and 'Plan'. The 'Order' tab is selected. The window title is 'Debt Reduction'. Below the tabs, the text reads: 'Which debt should I pay off first? This list shows the order in which you should pay off your debts, if you want to be out of debt as soon as possible and pay the least amount of interest.'

Below the table, there is a section titled 'Optimized Payment Plan Results' with the following text: 'Debt free as of 9/01', 'Total interest paid : $16,309.48', and 'Interest savings thus far : $13,127.28'. To the right of this section is a checkbox labeled 'Change Payment Order?'. At the bottom of the window are buttons for 'Cancel', 'Help', 'Back', and 'Next'.

Track cash withdrawals

For some people, ATM cards cause almost as much trouble as credit cards. Do you sometimes forget to enter ATM withdrawals? Do you know where you’re spending all that cash?

The most thorough way to track ATM withdrawals is to create a Quicken cash account. Track each withdrawal as a transfer from your chequing account to your cash account; then enter individual purchases in the cash account. To save time, you can track just the major transactions and enter an adjustment to cover miscellaneous expenses.

Cutting expenses where you can

Budgeting doesn’t have to mean you put the handcuffs on your spending. Think of it as a tool to help you make the trade-offs that will get you where you want to go. And you can’t make trade-offs on your spending unless you have all the facts. You know how much money you take home every month. Can you account for where it all goes?

First take a snapshot

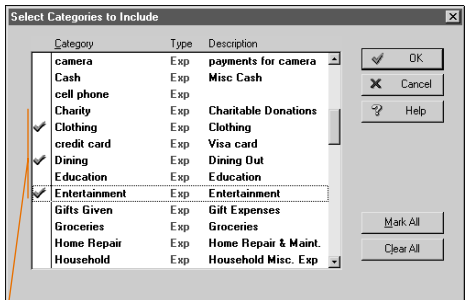

Since Tina has been tracking her spending in Quicken, she can create a cash flow report. This report summarizes her income and expenses by category.

Tina’s cash flow report shows just the categories she wants to track closely.
She can double-click the dining category amount to see a list of all transactions she’s assigned the category Dining to.

Target high spending areas

Using Quicken's budgeting tool, Tina can zero in on a few categories she'd like to spend less on, like her dining expenses. By cutting down on dining (and some other key spending areas), she'll have more money to put aside for her savings and investments.

In addition to Dining, Tina wants to focus on her Clothing and Entertainment categories.

Track where you overspend

Tina can use the Budget Goal Progress Bar to monitor a category in which she typically overspends. A Progress Bar can be displayed on the My Finances Centre.

Setting money aside

Once Tina is in a position to begin saving money, Quicken can help her start setting money aside.

She can start transferring a portion of her pay cheque every month to a savings or other interest-bearing account. The most straightforward method to manage savings in Quicken is to set

The 'Scheduled Transaction' radio button is selected. The 'How Often' is 'Monthly', the 'Number of Payments' is '999', the 'Record in Register' is 'Prompt before enter', and the 'Record This Many Days In Advance' is '3'.

Tina wants Quicken to transfer $250.00 from her chequing account to her savings account.

Of course, this transfer just serves as a reminder that you should make this transfer in your actual bank accounts. You may be able to automate the transfer through your bank.

Many banks and brokerages offer automatic deductions from your chequing or savings account (usually a money market account). Check with your financial institution.

“How can I reduce my taxes?”

Taxes are part of life every day of the year— not just on April 30. If you plan well and use tax-reducing strategies, you’ll have fewer headaches at tax preparation time and save money too.

Do you have a tax strategy? If not, review the next few pages to pick up a tip or two.

You’ll also learn how Quicken can help you organize and set up your accounts to track tax-related information all year. These features will save you time and money, too.

Quicken has a number of tools that can help you track your taxes all year.

To display the Tax Planner

From the Taxes menu, choose Tax Planner.

You can have Tax Planner get tax information from your Quicken data file. In the Preview Quicken Tax Data window, click the Quicken Import button.

Do you want to have Tax Planner project your tax liability, deductions, and exemptions to the end of the year? Click the Annualize All button.

Example Pete and Judy have two kids. They own an older home and have spent a lot of time and effort on home improvements this year. Both are employed and Judy contributes to her RRSP plan. What are some ways they can save money on taxes and how can Quicken help them do it?

Using the Quicken Tax Planner, Pete and Judy can get an idea of how much they'll be paying in taxes this year.

The screenshot shows the 'Quicken Tax Planner' window. At the top, there's a menu bar with 'Rates', 'Quicken Import', 'Print', 'Calculator', 'Reset', 'Exit', 'Help', and 'About'. Below the menu bar, there's a 'Province of Residence and Tax Year' section with 'Province' set to 'Alberta' and 'Year' set to '1999'. To the right, there's a 'Scenarios' section with 'Base', 'Alt. 1', and 'Alt. 2' buttons, and a 'Compare' button. The main area is divided into two columns. The left column is titled 'Income and Deductions' and contains the following fields: 'Employment Income' (42,500), 'Interest/Dividend Income' (2,505), 'Self-employment Income' (0), 'Other Income' (0), 'Total Income' (45,005), 'Deductions from Total Inc.' (9,000), 'Net Income' (36,005), 'Deductions from Net Inc.' (0), and 'Taxable Income' (36,005). The right column is titled 'Tax Computation' and contains the following fields: 'Non-ref. Credits' (1,098), 'Federal Tax' (5,500), 'Other Amounts Payable' (0), 'Provincial Tax' (2,505), 'Total payable' (8,103), 'Marginal Avg. Rate' (22.1% / 18.0%), 'Tax Due' (7,600), 'Tax Withholding' (7,600), 'Refundable Credits' (0), 'Tax Installments' (0), and 'Balance Owing' (0).

Strategies for reducing your tax bill

To reduce their taxes, Pete and Judy need to start looking for ways to save early in the year. They can review and use the tax saving ideas in these next few pages now and reap the benefits at tax time.

Contribute to retirement accounts

Contributing to a retirement account is a great way to reduce your tax bill. When you set money aside in a retirement account, the funds stay in the account, tax-deferred, until you withdraw them at retirement without penalty.

How does a Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) or Registered Pension Plan (RPP) compare to other investments? If you have $10,000 invested in a GIC or stock mutual fund, your interest or dividends are taxable on your current year's tax return. This means that part of what you earn goes to the government each year. If your $10,000 investment does really well, your long-term gain is also taxable.

With an RRSP, you won't have to pay tax on the money until you begin to withdraw it from the plan. And saving money tax-deferred can help you prepare for a financially secure future. Once you retire, chances are you'll be in a lower tax bracket, so you can possibly get a double tax break.

Pete just started contributing $2,000 a year to his RRSP. He's 30 years old and wants to retire at age 70. Here's an example of how his tax deferred savings can add up. If he earns 7% on his $2,000 annual contribution, his retirement fund will hold $511,618 by the time he's ready to draw from it. Of course, a fund may earn less or more than 7% on average. The point is that Pete is able to earn interest on the money he might otherwise pay in taxes. He can also get a tax deduction in the year he makes his contribution.

Judy has been contributing for several years to her RRSP. She used Quicken's EasyStep to set up and track her funds.

To track your RRSP with EasyStep

From the Investing menu, choose Investing Activities and then Track RRSP.

Quicken's RRSP update screen lets Judy view her portfolio in several ways.

Your retirement money compounds tax free

- The compounding of your money over time enables your contributions to grow more quickly.
- Best of all, you don't pay taxes on the amount that is compounded until you withdraw the funds. You get a deduction for your contributions from your income. When you withdraw the funds (contributions, interest, dividends, and gains) they are taxed as income. For more about retirement accounts, see "Common types of retirement accounts" on page 61.

Invest in tax-wise ways

Many financial decisions have an impact on taxes. For example, Pete and Judy are deciding between these two investments:

- A traditional savings account that pays 4% interest
- An equity mutual fund that pays dividends of 3.5%.

Which investment they should choose depends on their tax bracket. The savings account pays 4%, but the interest is fully taxable. Suppose they are in the 33% tax bracket (this means they are paying 33% in taxes on their income), they'll end up with just 2.7% interest after federal (and provincial, if applicable) taxes are deducted. In this case, the 3.5% dividend on the equity mutual fund gives a higher return. Pete and Judy are maximizing their return.

Remember, if your tax bracket is somewhat lower than 33%, the savings account could be the better investment.

Maximizing deductions

At tax time, don't just throw down your pencil and stop at the standard deduction. You may have more to claim than you thought. These examples are just a few of many deductions available:

Annual union, professional, or like dues

You can enter the total of the following:

- Annual membership dues you paid to a trade union or an association of public servants.
- Professional or malpractice liability insurance premiums or professional membership dues you paid if you had to pay them to keep a professional status recognized by law.
- Dues you paid to an advisory committee (or similar body) if you had to pay them under provincial law.

Keep in mind, however, that annual membership dues do not include initiation fees, special assessments, or charges for anything other than the organization's ordinary operating costs. You cannot claim charges for pension plans as membership dues, even if your receipts show them as dues. You may be eligible for a rebate of any GST (and QST, if applicable) you paid as part of your dues.

Child care expenses

You may be able to claim child care expenses you paid for someone to look after your children so that you could:

- Earn income from employment or self-employment.
- Take an occupational training course where you received a training allowance under the National Training Act.
- Conduct research or similar work for which you received a grant.

Moving expenses

If you moved in 1999, you may be able to deduct your moving expenses from income you earned at the new location. You can deduct your expenses if all of the following apply:

- You moved to start a job or business, or to study full-time at an educational institution that offers post-secondary courses.

- Your new home is at least 40 kilometres (by the shortest normal public route) closer than your previous home to your new workplace or school.
- Your move was from one place in Canada to another place in Canada.

Carrying charges and interest expenses

Remember to claim carrying charges and interest you paid to earn income from investments. Carrying charges include:

- Fees for the management or safe custody of investments.
- Safety deposit box charges.
- Fees for certain investment advice.
- Fees to have someone complete your tax return, but only if you have income from a business or property.
- Management or administration fees for your investments. Note that you can no longer claim administration fees for your RRSP or RRIF.

Employment expenses

You may be able to deduct certain expenses (including goods and services tax) you paid to earn money if your employment contract required you to pay the expenses.

Tuition fees and education amounts transferred from a child

You may be able to transfer a portion of your child's (or grandchild's) tuition fees or education amount if the student isn't required to claim the entire amount.

Medical expenses

You can claim medical expenses (such as glasses, physiotherapy, dental care, prescriptions, and others) for yourself, your spouse, and your dependants. If you and your spouse are filing returns, maximize the deductions by combining your medical expenses and reporting them on the return with the lowest net income.

Charitable donations

You can claim a federal tax credit of 17% of the first $200 of your donations, and 29% of the balance. If you and your spouse are filing returns, maximize the deduction by combining your donations and reporting them on the return with the highest tax.

Would you like to look into other possible deductions? Be sure to investigate any deduction thoroughly before you claim it. Check with Revenue Canada and Revenue Québec, the information provided in QuickTax, or your accountant for complete details and information.

More Quicken tax tools

Now that you've had a chance to review some ways to cut your tax bill, you need to set up Quicken to help you achieve this goal. Once you've set up your accounts and categories to help you track tax-related transactions, the most tedious part of tax preparation will be taken care of. To see an overview of your tax picture, open the Tax Centre. It provides access to the Quicken tax tools, along with tax tips, important dates, and summary information about your tax-related Quicken data. You can also set alerts based on your own tax data, and, if you have Internet access, the Tax Centre displays links to the Web resources.

Using Quicken helps whether you prepare your own returns with QuickTax, or gather the information to submit to a tax preparer.

Quicken has several tools that make your taxes easier to prepare and help you plan your tax bill. You can:

T1 General
Federal Individual Income Tax Return. Also referred to as the T1-General. This is the main form of your tax return. Balances from most other forms and schedules are carried to the T1 General.

Here are the category and the tax form line items.

The tax form line item is explained below.

You can also select the tax form line item when you set up the category. See the example on the previous page.

- Create reports that will help you fill in your tax forms.

These reports are helpful if you use QuickTax, or if you just need to provide detailed information to your tax advisor.

Tax summary reports group and subtotal transactions in your accounts by tax-related categories. Use this report if your taxes are fairly straightforward and you don't want to use QuickTax.

Capital gains reports and tax schedule reports group and subtotal your transactions by tax schedule line item.

- Use the Tax Planner throughout the year to estimate your tax bill and determine whether you are withholding the proper amount.

Working with tax advisors

Look for a tax advisor who:

- Has experience dealing with the issue you're struggling with.
- Focuses on taxes full-time or has years of experience.
- Pursues deductions as aggressively or conservatively as you are comfortable with.
- Provides solid references.
- Carries liability insurance.

Be sure to organize your records before you sit down with your tax advisor. Remember, advisors charge for their time; don't hire a tax preparer to organize a shoe-box full of receipts.

Types of tax advisors

- Consider using QuickTax, Canada's leading tax preparation software, to help you understand and prepare your tax returns.
- Preparers and accountants prepare most individual tax returns. Accountants may represent you before Revenue Canada and Revenue Québec if you are audited or your return is questioned.
- Tax lawyers deal with more sophisticated tax problems involving business deals and Revenue Canada and Revenue Québec. Typically, they don't handle routine tax preparation.

Tracking your GST/PST

If you are running a small business, you may be collecting GST¹ and PST² on your sales, which you remit to the federal and provincial tax authorities. You can set up Quicken to track the GST and PST you collect. If you are working with GST or PST on a daily basis with invoices or purchase orders, you should consider getting Quicken Home & Business, which has added features for managing your home-based business.

Using Quicken to track GST and PST gives you an instant view of what you owe the federal and provincial tax authorities. Transaction reports give you a complete record of your tax-related transactions. Net worth reports and graphs give you an accurate picture of your business finances as they include your GST and PST Payable accounts.

To track GST and PST effectively in Quicken Deluxe, you have to:

- Set up a GST payable account to track what you owe.
- Enter all of your business income and expense transactions to keep your account balances up to date.
- Use categories on all of your transactions to track different types of income and expenses.
- Run reports to analyze your finances and report how much you owe.

Setting up your account

Set up a payable account to track both the GST you pay to vendors and the GST you collect from customers. You may want to name the account “GST Payable”.

If you also need to track the PST you collect on sales, set up a separate account and name this account “PST Payable”.

1. References to GST also apply to HST.

2. References to PST also apply to QST.

Entering a sale

Enter business sales as deposits and use an income category to identify the type of income. Record GST as a separate line item in the Splits window. Entering the name of the GST payable account in the Category field transfers the tax amount to the GST payable account and increases the balance of the tax you owe.

If you pay PST, similarly transfer the PST you collect on sales to the PST payable account. Normally, you don't receive a PST tax credit for purchases. However, if you pay Quebec sales tax, record QST on both sales and purchases.

Entering a purchase

When you purchase supplies for your business, you can track any tax you pay by entering the name of the GST payable account in the Category field of the payment transaction. Quicken transfers this amount to your GST payable account and decreases the amount of your GST liability.

If you open the GST Payable (or PST Payable) liability account, you see one entry for each business transaction. When you collect GST or PST from a customer, the tax appears as an increase in the account balance because your liability increases. When you pay GST to a supplier, the tax paid appears as a decrease in the account balance because the GST you pay to a supplier acts as a credit and reduces your liability to Revenue Canada.

To set up a tax payable account

From the Finance menu, choose Account List and then click New. Select Liability as the account type and click Next. Enter the account name as GST Payable, or something similar. Complete the Account Setup steps and click Done.

If you need to track PST, repeat these steps to create a "PST Payable" liability account.

To set up your tax reports

In the Register window, click Report and select Register Report. Click Customize and then click the Display tab. On the Display tab, select Split Transaction Detail. Click the Accounts tab. On the Accounts tab, click Bank and select any chequing accounts you use for business. Click the Advanced tab. On the Advanced tab, to report only sales, select Deposits from the Transaction Types drop-down list. To report only purchases, select Payments. Now click Create.

Reporting on your tax records

To see information such as memos, categories, and split transaction detail, open the account you use for business transactions and create a Transaction Detail report.

Paying GST and PST to the tax authorities

Look at the ending balances of your tax payable accounts or run reports to find out how much tax you owe. Record your cheque to the tax authority in your chequing account. In the Category field, enter a transfer to the tax payable account. If the ending balance of your account appears in black, rather than red, the tax authority owes you a refund. If you receive a GST refund, record the deposit in your chequing account register and enter the name of the tax payable account (for example, GST Payable) in the Category field.

“Can we afford a new home?”

What are the benefits of owning your own home? You'll eventually pay off the mortgage and substantially lower your housing costs in retirement. For renters, the payments go on and on, and up and up.

When you have a mortgage payment every month and home repairs to think about, you tend to be less free-wheeling with your money and might tend to save more. You can also use your house as collateral for a loan.

Marie has been working and trying to save money for a down payment on a house for a couple of years. She's watched more of her pay cheque go to her landlord as her rent continues to rise. How can Marie figure out if it's time to take the plunge into home ownership?

TIP

In the years leading up to your initial home purchase, move your investments to more conservative (safer) choices so that a sudden market downturn won't harm you at the last minute.

First, Marie needs to figure out how much of a down payment she can make and how big a mortgage she can carry. To get an idea, she can run a net worth report.

To create a net worth report

From the Reports menu, choose EasyAnswer Reports and Graphs and then "What am I worth?" Click Show Report.

If you haven't set up all your liabilities (like credit card accounts, car loans, and other debts), review the information in "Where does all of our money go?" on page 17.

This report gives Marie an idea of how much money she has available for a down payment.

Net Worth Report (includes unrealized gains) As of 22/06/99 (in Can. Dollars)
Acct	22/06/99 Balance
TOTAL Other Assets	250,000.00

TOTAL Investments	18,000.00
TOTAL ASSETS	271,000.00
LIABILITIES
Credit Cards
Amex	1,000.00
Visa gold card	2,400.00
TOTAL Credit Cards	3,400.00

minivan	1,765.76
TOTAL Other Liabilities	262,161.65
TOTAL LIABILITIES	265,561.65
OVERALL TOTAL	5,438.35

Marie can expect to put down between 5% and 25% of the purchase price as a down payment.

To help her put some money aside each month for her down payment, Marie can set up a savings goal account in Quicken. In Quicken, she can transfer money from her chequing account to the savings goal account. Although the money stays in her real-world account, it's hidden from her when she looks at her chequing account balance in Quicken.

To create a savings goal

From the Planning menu, choose Savings Goals. From the Savings Goals window, click New and then fill in the information. The name of the goal will be the name of the account used to track the savings goal.

Do you qualify?

The guidelines for qualifying for a home loan are set by individual financial institutions. However, there are some general guidelines to follow:

- Your expected monthly housing costs (principal, interest, property taxes, and insurance) should not exceed roughly one-third of your gross monthly income.

TIP

If you can put down a large down payment and have excellent credit, some lenders may take this into consideration for the one-third limitation.

- Your total debt (consumer debt and mortgage debt) should not exceed 40% of your gross monthly income. If your consumer debt is high, use Quicken's Debt Reduction Planner to create a plan to reduce your debts as quickly as possible and pay the least amount of interest. For details, see "Reduce your debt" on page 29.
- You should be able to make a 10% down payment on the house. However, you may be able to get a high-ratio mortgage from CMHC, which requires a 5% minimum down payment.

Getting a great mortgage deal

You need to shop around to find an appropriate mortgage deal. Look at the interest rate and the insurance you'll be paying, as well as the insurance that will be added to the premium you pay, the term of the mortgage, and whether the term is open or closed.

Brief look at mortgage types

Mortgages are amazingly varied—you'll find an array of interest rates and terms. The term of your mortgage is a period of time where the interest you pay is fixed. For example, a mortgage with a five year term at 7% interest means that you will pay 7% interest regardless of what happens to the interest rates over the next five years.

To display the Loan Calculator

From the Planning menu, choose Financial Calculators and then Loan.

To set up a loan

From the Household menu, choose Loans. In the View Loans window, click New. Follow the step-by-step instructions.

You may have to decide between a closed term—where you can't pay off the principal of the mortgage without also paying a penalty, and an open term, where you can get out of the mortgage (and negotiate a better deal) at any time. Figure out how long you plan to own the house and how comfortable you are with changes to your monthly mortgage payments before you apply.

Quicken's amortization methods

Quicken can amortize loans in two ways, using the common formulas for mortgages in Canada: compounding interest on a semi-annual basis (the default method), or compounding on a monthly basis.

Figuring out the payments

For a quick estimate on a loan, use Quicken's Loan Calculator.

The calculator can show you:

- Your monthly payment, if you know the loan amount and the interest rate.
- How much you can borrow, if you can afford a specific amount per month.
- How much interest and principal you would pay over the life of the loan.

Beyond this fast and simple method, you also may want to do loan comparisons when you are shopping around for a loan. Home loans tend to be complex, and you may want to see the effect of a lump sum payment or other loan element. You can use Quicken's loan feature to help you evaluate different loans before you choose one.

First, create a new Quicken data file to play "what ifs" with different loans. Create a new "fake" chequing account when Quicken prompts you. Create as many loans as you are considering. For details on setting up a loan, see "Owning your home" below.

When you're done, delete the data file you've been using to test the loans.

Owning your home

Once you've purchased your home, Quicken can help you manage your mortgage payments, figure out how much insurance you need and prepare for emergencies.

Tara and Rob just purchased their first home. They want to track their mortgage payments in Quicken. To do this, they need to set up their loan in Quicken. They can also set up their payment so Quicken enters it in their register automatically when it's due and reminds them to pay it.

Quicken also creates a liability account to track the principal remaining on the loan. To complete the picture, they need to create an asset account to track the resale value of their home.

To create a net worth report that shows home equity

From the Reports menu, choose EasyAnswer Reports and Graphs and then “What am I worth?” Click Show Report.

In the Net Worth Report window, click Customize. Click the Accounts tab.

You only want to include asset and liability accounts, so click Clear All to remove the check marks from all accounts. Then select just the asset and liability accounts.

When you click Create, Quicken displays the net worth report. The Overall Total amount is the equity in your home.

Memorize the report and name it something like “home equity.”

When they run a net worth report, the difference between what they owe (tracked in a liability account) and the resale value (tracked in an asset account) is their equity.

Open	Hide (g)	Info	New	Edit	Delete	Print	Options	How Do I

Chequing	Bank		3	$1,100.00
Money Market	Bank		1	$5,000.00
Home	Asset		2	$256,387.75
Home Mortgage	Liability		1	$158,925.36

Tara and Rob track the value of their home in an asset account called “Home.” They track what they owe on their home in a liability account called “Home Mortgage.”

After they’ve set up their loan in Quicken, they’ll reap these benefits:

- They can see the amount of interest they pay each year.
- They can see how the loan’s outstanding balance affects their net worth.
- They can include the equity they have in their home in a net worth report, provided they also track the current value of their home in an asset account.

Tracking your home equity

As Tara and Rob record house payments each month, Quicken transfers the portion of the payment that applies to the principal to their liability account to decrease its balance. Their decreasing debt and increasing equity is then reflected in their net worth report.

Include your asset and liability accounts. If you’ve taken out a second mortgage or an equity loan on your house, include those accounts too.

Quicken helps you track your loan payments automatically. Be sure to update the value of your home as time goes on. Track any home improvements you make. These improvements affect the appraisal value of your home when you sell it.

Thinking about refinancing?

After you purchase your home, you may want or need to change the conditions of your mortgage. Refinancing costs money and time, so you need to weigh the costs against the expected benefits.

To display the Refinance Calculator

From the Planning menu, choose Financial Calculators and then Refinance.

Reasons to refinance

- You need to borrow more money. You can take out a larger mortgage or a personal line of credit and then use the extra money to remodel your kitchen or pay for your child's university tuition. Borrowing more against your home can make good financial sense because interest rates on mortgages and personal lines of credit tend to be lower than on personal loans. Just be sure you can afford the higher payments.
- If interest rates decline, you may be able to refinance and obtain a loan at a lower interest rate. Remember, when you refinance, you may have to pay service fees. You need to figure out how long it will take to recover the cost of refinancing, based on your new, lower interest rate and lower monthly payment.
- Sometimes it's to your advantage to switch to a different kind of mortgage. For example, if you have an adjustable-rate loan and interest rates have plummeted, look at refinancing it as a fixed-rate loan. Remember, it's impossible to predict changes in interest rates.

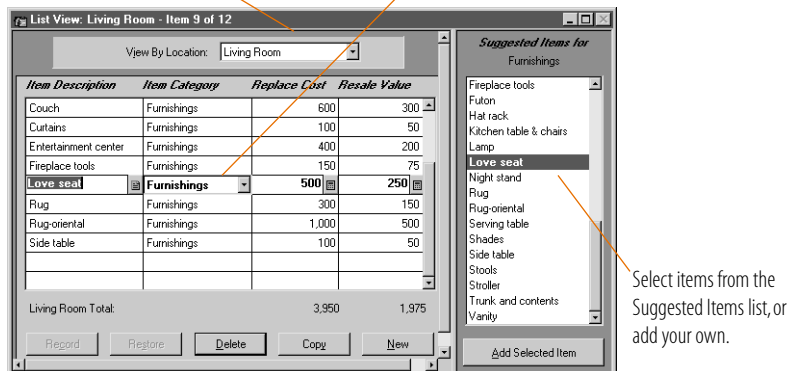

You can use Quicken's Refinance Calculator to figure out if a new loan is more economical than your current loan. Quicken also calculates how long it will take for you to break even if you choose to refinance.

Figuring out the value of what you own

Whether you own a home or rent one, you've probably accumulated a number of valuable possessions over the years. Quicken Home Inventory can help you figure out the total value of what you own. Once you know this value, you can see whether your insurance coverage is adequate. In case of catastrophe, a list of all your belongings and their value can help substantiate an insurance claim.

Select the room or location you want to inventory.

Then select an item category, such as electronic equipment. The Furnishings category contains the greatest variety of items.

Once you've gone through the contents of your home and entered them in Quicken Home Inventory, store a backup disk and a printed report of your home inventory data in a fireproof box, or better yet, in a location other than your home. This safety measure can help you substantiate an insurance claim if your home is destroyed.

Determining your insurance coverage

Let's say you've been putting money aside and have an adequate emergency fund. You've also invested wisely and you contribute to your RRSP. Feel set for life? Are you prepared if the worst happens and you lose your home in a fire or other disaster? You could see your savings quickly disappear if you don't have adequate insurance coverage.

A brief look at insurance Review your current policy limits. To recover the entire loss of your home, your policy must cover the total replacement cost. This cost is the amount it would take to rebuild the house after it is totally destroyed. And it's definitely to your advantage to insure your home and contents for at least 80% of their value. If you insure your home for less, and then incur a loss, your insurance company will prorate its reimbursement to you.

To start Quicken Home Inventory

From the Household menu, choose Quicken Home Inventory.

To check your coverage with Quicken Home Inventory

In Quicken Home Inventory, from the View menu, choose Policy List. Then select Homeowner/Renter (or the policy you are assigning your belongings to). Click Edit. Enter all the information about your policy, including the full amount of your coverage in the Coverage field and click OK.

The Policy list now shows the difference between your insurance coverage and replacement cost.

If this difference is positive, you're probably adequately covered; if the difference is negative, consider purchasing additional coverage.

To create an insurance coverage report

From the Reports menu in Quicken Home Inventory, choose Insurance Coverage Summary.

If you have the option, consider signing up for an inflation guard endorsement. It's a clause in your policy that increases the policy limits for your coverage by a specific percentage on a regular basis. For example, you may have your limits increased by 1% every four months to keep ahead of inflation. You still need to check your coverage every year. Construction costs may run ahead of inflation in your area. If you make any improvements or renovations to your home, you should take another look at your coverage.

How Quicken Home Inventory can help After you've entered your home and all your belongings, you'll need to record information about your current insurance coverage. Once you've done this, Quicken Home Inventory shows you the difference between your insurance coverage and the replacement cost of your inventory items.

To see insurance coverage details, create and print an insurance coverage summary report.

Selling a home

When you sell your home, you can use Quicken to track all sale-related expenses. Set up an expense category called Home and several subcategories (see the accompanying table for suggestions) to track expenses.

Category name	Use for
Home:Sale price	The total sale price to your buyer.
Home:Sale fees	Expenses associated with the sale of the house, such as legal fees and realtor's commissions.
Home:House profit	The amount you realize from the sale of the house.
Home:Fixup	Expenses for repairs necessary for your sale.

When you close the sale on your house, some of the money goes to pay off your old mortgage, some of it goes to your realtor, some for bank and legal fees, and some to your bank account as profit. A realty company usually takes care of distributing these funds.

If you have been tracking your loan and selling expenses in Quicken:

- Record a transaction in your Quicken chequing register (or whatever account you choose to put the money in).
- Split the transaction to match the distribution of the money.

Category	Memo	Amount
1. Home:Sale price		189,000.00
2. [Home mortgage]
3. Home:Sale fees	bank fees
4. Home:Sale fees	realtor commission
5.
6.
7.
8.

Split Total: 189,000.00
Remainder: 0.00
Transaction Total: 189,000.00

Hint: if there is some amount leftover, use the adjust button to get rid of it ->

- Next, delete your loan, since it's paid off.

Quicken asks if you want to delete the liability account that tracked your loan. Don't delete the account, since you probably want to keep it for your records.

- Do close out the liability account that tracked the mortgage loan you deleted.

After you record the sales transaction, this liability account's balance is zero. Close out the account by marking the opening and closing transactions as cleared. Click twice in the Clr column, telling Quicken you don't want to reconcile.

Organizing all those papers

Store these items in a secure place, such as a safe deposit box:

Here's a sample transaction.

First split line lists the full sale price assigned to Home:Sale.

Second line transfers the amount necessary to pay off the mortgage to the mortgage liability account.

Third line assigns bank fees to Home:Sale fees.

Fourth line assigns Realtor's commission to Home:Sale fees.

To start the Emergency Records Organizer

From the Household menu, choose Emergency Records Organizer. Click the Create/Update Records tab and enter information about your home records.

- Deeds, title, survey map, title insurance.
- Homeowner's insurance policy.
- A copy of your home inventory on disk and an inventory detail report.

Videotape or take pictures of your furnishings (especially valuable antiques and jewelry) and include the video or photos with your home inventory information.

- Records of permanent home improvements you've made.
- Payment records for the sale or purchase of a home.
- Warranties and service agreements.

You can track the whereabouts of all these items using Quicken's Emergency Records Organizer. For details, see "Know where your records and policies are located" on page 15.

“How should we invest for retirement?”

Are you ready to plunge in and start investing? This chapter provides some background information and a few suggestions to get you started.

Investing is not as complicated as you may think. You need to understand your goals and figure out what kind of return you need to achieve them. You need to know your time frame, your comfort in taking risk, and the best way to allocate your resources.

Before you roll up your sleeves and start planning your investments, you need to:

- Set aside an emergency fund.

Have an emergency fund of three to six month's worth of living expenses tucked away in a money market fund or other investment you can easily liquidate. For details, see "Are you covering the bases?" on page 22.

- Pay off your credit card and consumer debt.

Credit cards and auto loans carry relatively high interest rates and are not tax-deductible. Compare the interest rate you're paying on these debts with the after-tax rate of return you would expect earn on your investments.

One Quicken tool that can help you manage and reduce your debt is the Debt Reduction Planner. For details, see "Reduce your debt" on page 29.

- Fund your retirement.

The beauty of a tax-deferred retirement account like an RRSP or RPP, is that your contributions are tax deferred. The money in these accounts compounds over time without being taxed until you withdraw it.

Just look at the savings. Suppose that you're paying about 35% in taxes on your last dollars of income. If you can contribute $3,000 to a tax-deductible retirement plan, you'll probably find that your tax bill decreases by about $1,050.

To make retirement plans

From the Planning menu, choose Financial Calculator, and then Retirement.

Common types of retirement accounts

Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) RRSPs can give you two major benefits: contributions are tax deductible, and income earned in an RRSP is not currently taxed. Tax is deferred until you withdraw funds from the plan.

There are a number of different types of RRSPs:

- Deposit plans

Probably the most common RRSP is a deposit with a bank, trust company, or other financial institution. These are low-risk, interest-bearing investments which are generally insured by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation.

- Managed plans

These are investment funds operated by financial institutions, life insurance companies, and independent mutual fund companies. Contributions may be pooled with those of other investors in a broad range of investments, including Canadian stocks, bonds, and mortgages.

- Self-administered plans

This type of plan is for those who like a high degree of control over how their contributions are invested. A self-administered plan may invest directly in deposits of financial institutions, Canadian stocks, bonds, mortgages, options, and (within limits) foreign securities. The plan has a trustee (usually a trust company or bank) responsible for the administration of the plan, but you decide how to invest your contributions. This type of plan offers the greatest flexibility, but requires the time and inclination to manage your investments directly. Self-administered plans are offered through most trust companies, banks and investment dealers.

Note

Information about retirement accounts was current as of the date this book was written.

Generally, you should make your RRSP contribution in early January of the year, instead of late in February the following year, since tax on the income earned on your funds during that 14-month period will be deferred. However, if you can't make a lump-sum payment, consider a monthly contribution—you'll be surprised how it grows. Make contributions early in your career and contribute as much as you can each year (up to your contribution limit).

Registered Pension Plan (RPP) RPPs are retirement investment plans which are set up by employers, rather than individuals. There are two main categories of RPPs:

- Defined benefits plans

In this type of RPP, the pension is based on a formula which includes employment earnings and years of service.

- Money purchase plans

In this type of RPP, the pension depends on the amount contributed to the plan and the earnings on those contributions.

Deferred Profit Sharing Plan (DPSP) Some employers use a DPSP to provide retirement benefits. In a DPSP, only the employer makes contributions, which are linked to the employer's profits for the year. Once you retire, or on your 69th birthday, your entire share of the plan becomes payable to you. In some plans, it may be possible for you to receive the benefits over an extended period—up to ten years. Alternatively, you can use the DPSP to purchase an annuity (before you turn 69) with a guaranteed term of up to 15 years.

How Quicken can help

If you have an RRSP, Quicken can help you track your contributions painlessly. For information about using this feature, see “Contribute to retirement accounts” on page 36.

Do you need a quick summary of how well your retirement savings plan is working? Take a look at the Retirement Calculator. It may also provide some incentive to save more.

The screenshot shows two overlapping windows from the Quicken software. The 'Retirement Calculator' window is in the background, and the 'Deposit Schedule' window is in the foreground.

69	0.00	42,250.56	512,840.27
70	0.00	43,940.58	506,411.66

For example, you are 35 years old and have saved $10,000 towards retirement. You plan to contribute $3,000 a year to your retirement plan. If you retire at age 67, you'll have over $519,000 in your retirement plan.

Getting started with investments

Once you've taken care of your emergency fund, paid off your credit cards, and funded your retirement accounts, start thinking about and funding your other financial goals. Investing wisely may help you save for a down payment on a house, finance your child's education, and enjoy a comfortable retirement.

Your investment plan can be fairly simple. Think about the time frame in which you hope to achieve your goals, since the length of time you have in mind affects the type of investing you consider. Know your comfort level with different kinds of risk, and don't forget about taxes.

To learn how to track an RRSP or RPP

If you want to learn how to track an RRSP or RPP account in Quicken, choose Index from the Help menu and enter investments, setting up.

For instance, if you need a higher return because your time frame is short, you'll probably have to take greater risks. If you have a long investment time frame, you are in a position to take a more conservative, cautious approach.

Balancing risk and reward

Some investments can fluctuate in value a great deal from year to year. If you put your money in a volatile investment, and it drops in value right when you need to sell it, you may take a loss.

Let's say you'd like to invest money to fund a down payment on a house. You want to cash in this investment in about four years, when you are ready to buy. Since your time frame is so short, a volatile investment, like stocks, may not be the best choice for you. You may be better off investing in money market mutual funds and GICs to invest for a short-term goal.

If you have small children and want to invest for their education, you'd choose a different investment strategy. To fund a long-term goal, you'd want to invest the majority of funds in stock mutual funds (index funds and growth funds), some in foreign stocks, and so on. Then, as your children get older, gradually move your investments to less volatile alternatives.

If you want to check how your education investment plan is working, use the University Calculator.

Your need to take risk

If the money you are investing for retirement grows too slowly, you may not be able to retire when you want or have the lifestyle you desire. As a minimum, you need to outpace inflation.

Let's say you put all your savings into GICs or T-Bills. After years of saving, you cash them in. You may be surprised at how little your money has grown. Taxes on your retirement account withdrawals take a huge bite and due to inflation, your money can't buy as much as it did when you started saving.

To reach your retirement goal, you may need to take more risk. On the other hand, if you're well on your way to achieving your goal, taking more risk than necessary may jeopardize your nest egg.

Your tax situation

If you don't pay attention to the tax implications of your investments, you may overlook easy ways to maximize the return on your investment. For example, make sure you've contributed what you can to your retirement accounts. Check your Notice of Assessment from Revenue Canada to see your current contribution limit. Currently, the standard limit is the lesser of 18% of your earned income or $13,500, plus accumulated carry-forward amounts from previous years.

When making investment decisions, consider the impact of income taxes and the expected rate of inflation. In periods of low inflation, investments offering a lower nominal rate of return can be as attractive as those with higher nominal returns during a period of higher inflation. For example, a 6% nominal return when inflation is 2% returns 1% in real after-tax terms, while a 12% nominal return when inflation is 8% returns negative 2% in real after-tax terms, assuming a 50% tax rate in both cases.

Interest, dividends and capital gains are subject to different rates of income tax, which vary depending on your province of residence. In general, a lower rate of tax is imposed on Canadian dividends than on interest income. As a rule of thumb, an investor must earn over $5 of interest to receive the same after-tax cash as he or she would receive from $4 of Canadian dividend income. In general, the rate of tax on capital gains falls between the rates applied to interest and dividend income.

Capital gains may be tax-free if you sell "qualified small business corporation shares" or any "qualified farm property" where the enhanced capital gains exemption is available.

To create an asset allocation graph

If you've assigned an asset class to each security in your Quicken investment accounts, you can create an asset allocation graph.

From the Reports menu, choose Investing and then Investment Asset Allocation Graph. Click Create.

Allocating your assets

How can you put these pieces together into a plan? How can you balance long-term and short-term goals, the risk you should (or are willing) to take, so that your money grows and the tax implications for your investments are minimized?

Case studies

Asset allocation can help. Also think about your time horizon and don't be too conservative. Most of us will likely live to be 80 or 90, so your investments need to grow for decades. You only need a small fraction of the money when you first retire.

These sample allocations may give you some insight.

Example 1: Alex Alex is 30 and single. He wants to start aggressively saving for retirement. He's just starting to put money in his RRSP. This plan has four investment options:

- a money market fund
- a bond fund
- a Canadian equity fund
- an international equity fund

What mix should Alex consider?

- 80% in equity funds
- 20% in bonds

Example 2: Peter and Colleen Peter and Colleen are each in their mid-40s and are on track to achieve their retirement goals. They want to invest for growth (for a secure retirement) as well as help their children with education costs. They've travelled abroad extensively and believe that tremendous growth opportunities are available overseas and want to invest aggressively in international funds.

What mix should Peter and Colleen think about?

- 65% in equity funds
- 35% in bonds

Example 3: Pat and Chris Pat and Chris are both in their 50s. They are concerned about preserving their capital. They have sufficient assets (a house, a summer cottage, a few common stocks) and want to protect them. Growth is of secondary concern. Since they are nearing retirement age, they also have six month's worth of living expenses in a money market mutual fund.

What is a good investment mix for this couple?

- 50% equity funds
- 50% bonds

Finding the right investments for your goals

What about mutual funds?

You have two main options for investing in securities (like stocks and bonds):

- Research and buy individual securities.
- Purchase a mutual fund, which is a package of securities managed by an investment company.

Investing in mutual funds has several advantages:

Diversification If you invest in individual stocks, a wise strategy is to hold stocks in different industries and different stocks within an industry. A good mutual fund invests in this way; it puts money in dozens of securities.

Professional money management Unless you have endless time and lots of money, you probably can't research each investment as much as you'd like. A mutual fund manager works full-time to select investments and monitors them continually.

Note

These examples are for investments inside an RRSP, which means the investments are set up to be part of an RRSP contribution. Inside an RRSP, certain limits apply. For example, you can invest a maximum of 20% of the value of your portfolio in foreign investments.

To set up an investment account

From the Finance menu, choose Account List, and then click New. Choose an account type and click Next. Follow the EasyStep instructions to set up the account.

Cost effectiveness Good money managers are expensive. Since mutual fund companies buy and sell large blocks of securities and often manage hundreds of millions or even billions of dollars, the cost of services is spread across all fund investors.

What criteria should you use?

Experience and track records Look at the fund manager's track record and how long the manager has been in place. Review how the fund has performed over time—when the market is up and the market is down, ideally over a 5 to 10 year span. Some funds achieve high returns by taking great risks. The fund may sink in a down market, however. Look at the overall track records of the parent company offering the fund. Stick with fund companies that have a history of delivering many winning funds. Finally, look at the total assets the company has under management.

Costs Look at the fund's annual operating expenses and sales commission (also known as loads). These costs can lower your returns. Many excellent no-load stock funds charge 1% or less for operating fees annually. Many top bond and money market funds charge 0.5% or less per year.

Actively versus passively managed funds Most funds are managed actively. This means a portfolio management team is researching and initiating trades to ensure that the funds hold securities with the best prospects. In contrast, passively managed "index" funds invest in a relatively fixed group of securities that track a broad market index. For example, the TSE 300 Index tracks the performance of 300 large Canadian company stocks. Index mutual funds, which mimic these indices, can be operated at far lower cost than actively managed funds, since these funds don't require a team to research and monitor securities.

Take advantage of the BellCharts Mutual Fund Finder, which provides detailed insight into individual Canadian mutual funds.

To install and use the BellCharts Mutual Fund Finder

In Windows, choose the program group containing Quicken (using the Start menu in Windows 95/98), then select Install BellCharts Mutual Fund Finder.

Once you've installed the BellCharts Mutual Fund Finder, you can open it from the Quicken program group.

Setting up your investments in Quicken

With Quicken, you can set up your investments easily and keep it up to date with current information.

From the Investing menu, choose Security List and then click New. In the Set up a new security window, enter the name of the security in the Name field, the exchange the security is traded on in the Exchange field, and the ticker symbol in the Ticker symbol field. Quicken will automatically provide the complete online symbol from that information. Click Next and complete the rest of the set up.

After you have set up your securities, you can view them in three ways: the investment register, Portfolio View, and Security Detail View.

- Portfolio View shows price and performance data for any and all the investments you track in Quicken, organized by account. You can also group them by security, security type, investment goal, or asset class.
- Security Detail View shows transaction and price data for a single security.

You can enter these common transactions from either the investment register or Security Detail View.

Viewing how much your investments are worth

To answer the question "What are my investments worth?", you need to determine the market value of your investments.

Example John made the following transactions on stock ABC:

On this date	John made this transaction	At this price per share
12/31/98	Bought 100 shares	$10
7/31/99	Bought 50 shares	$15
1/4/00	Received a dividend of $40, reinvested it in two more shares	$20

John's market value in stock ABC as of 1/4/00 is:

$$\begin{aligned}\text{market value} &= \text{number of shares you own} \times \text{current market price per share} \\ &= 152 \text{ shares} \times $20/\text{share} \\ &= $3,040\end{aligned}$$

There are several ways to see how much your investments are worth:

- View your market value in Portfolio View.
- Create a portfolio value report.
- Create a net worth report.

Viewing your market value in Portfolio View

Portfolio View shows all securities in all investment accounts. You can also view your securities by type, goal, asset class, or security name. You'll find these choices in the Group by drop-down list.

Group by list.

If you'd like to rearrange the columns or add new columns, such as ROI, Average Cost, or Amt Invested, click Customize.

Name	Cur	Mkt Price	Shares	Mkt Value
Investment	C $			1,287.50
Intuit		25 3/4	50	1,287.50
Cash				0.00
Jade Brokerage	C $			240.00
Penguin		20	12	240.00
Cash				0.00
Totals in Canadian Dollar				e-estimated 1,527.50

The market value of an account includes any cash that's in the account (unless you set up your investment account to have an accompanying linked chequing account).

To create a portfolio value report (subtotaled by goal)

From the Reports menu, choose Investing and then Portfolio Value Report. Click Customize and then click the Display tab. Select Investment Goal in the Subtotal by drop-down list and then click Create.

To create a net worth report

From the Reports menu, choose Own&Owe and then Net Worth Report.

Creating a portfolio value report

The portfolio value report provides the same totals as Portfolio View, except you can subtotal by security type, goal, or asset class. For example, you can create a portfolio value report subtotaled by investment goal.

Viewing your net worth

To see how your investments contribute to your total net worth, create a net worth report.

If your investments don't appear on the net worth report, click Customize, and then click Accounts. Make sure your investment accounts are selected, and then click Create to re-create the report.

Tracking the return on your investments

To answer the question "What return am I getting on my investments?", Quicken offers two measurements: Return on Investment (ROI) and Internal Rate of Return (IRR).

Example Let's review John's transactions on stock ABC:

On this date	John created this transaction	At this price per share
12/31/98	Bought 100 shares	$10

On this date	John created this transaction	At this price per share
7/31/99	Bought 50 shares	$15
1/4/00	Received a dividend of $40, which he reinvested in two more shares	$20

Return on Investment (ROI) ROI shows the total profit he could make from a security if he sold his shares today. It is equal to dollars returned divided by dollars invested in the security.

$ return is the total profit he's made from a security since he started investing in it. This includes the current market value plus cash received from sales of shares, minus $ invested.

$ invested is the amount he has invested in a security, excluding reinvested income.

John's $ invested in stock ABC from 12/31/98 to 1/4/00 is:

$$\begin{aligned}$ \text{ invested} &= (100 \times 10) + (50 \times 15) \\ &= $1,750\end{aligned}$$

John's $ return in stock ABC from 12/31/98 to 1/4/00 is:

$$\begin{aligned}$ \text{ return} &= \text{current market value} + \text{cash received from sale of shares} \\ &\quad - $ \text{ invested} \\ &= $2,376 + 360 - $1,750 \\ &= $986\end{aligned}$$

John's ROI in stock ABC from 12/31/98 to 1/4/00 is:

$$\begin{aligned}\text{ROI} &= $ \text{ return} / $ \text{ invested} \\ &= $986 / $1,750 \\ &= 56\%\end{aligned}$$

TIP

The performance numbers listed on your brokerage statement may not match what you see in Quicken.

To see complete descriptions of ROI and IRR

From the Help menu, choose Index and enter ROI, return on investment.

To create a graph

From the Investing Centre, under Investing Activities, click Chart Multiple Securities. Follow the onscreen directions to create a graph that can include multiple items from your Security List and selected market indexes.

It’s probably a timing issue; the information your broker sends is not as up-to-date as what you see in your current Quicken data.

Internal Rate of Return (IRR) IRR is a percentage equal to the interest rate on a bank account that would give you the same total return on your investment. IRR is also called average annual total return.

Review these examples:

If a mutual fund lists its one-year average annual total return as 20% and you invest $100 in that fund, you’d have $120 by the end of the year.

If a mutual fund lists its three-year average annual total return as 20%, and you invest $100 in that fund, you’d have $172.80 (an increase of $72.80 or 72.8%) at the end of three years:

	Ending balance
1st year	$120.00
2nd year	$144.00
3rd year	$172.80

Tracking capital gains and taxable investment income

Quicken provides reports that let you track your capital gains and taxable investment income. You can use the reports to complete your tax forms; for instance, your capital gains transactions will be in a format suitable for Schedule 3 of your T1 return.

Important Quicken uses the average cost basis of your investment to calculate your capital gains. Please note that using lot handling features in Quicken will change the way that your Canadian capital gains amounts are calculated on the Capital Gains report. Using Quicken's lot handling features will make the Capital Gains report amounts incorrect for reporting in Canada and therefore is not recommended.

Canadian Mutual Funds

This Appendix provides a list of Canadian mutual funds. The list is sorted alphabetically by the company which provides the mutual fund, and by the name of the fund. Use this list to enter Canadian mutual funds into Quicken. Check with your broker or fund company if you are unsure about the type of fund you own. At the time this manual was printed, not all funds were available for pricing. As more companies are added, updated lists will be available on our www.quicken.ca website.

Note

Some symbols already have the exchange identifier and a colon (:) at the beginning of the symbol. This exchange prefix will have to be removed before you enter the symbol in Quicken.

About the Canadian Exchanges

Unlike the U.S. stock market exchanges, the same stock ticker symbol can reside on all of the Canadian stock market exchanges. When you enter a symbol for a new security, Quicken automatically place the correct exchange prefix (the exchange identifier code followed by a colon) in front of Canadian security symbols. For US securities, Quicken uses a dollar sign ($) without a colon.

To get a quote on a preferred stock, replace the .PR with a minus sign (-). For example, the Alcan Aluminum LTD Preferred E security on the Toronto exchange (AL.PRE) would become AL-E , and Quicken will automatically place the correct exchange identifier in front of it (T:AL-E).

Likewise, to get a quote for a warrant, replace the .WT with a plus sign (+). For instance, BRI.WT would become BRI+.

Classes

Some stocks have multiple classes, such as class A or class B, and so on. You designate the class of a stock by entering a period and the class after the symbol. For example, the stock RCI has two classes (A and B) on the Toronto exchange. To price class B of this stock, enter RCI.B

Fixed-price securities

Some of the funds listed on the following pages are fixed-price funds, which means that the price of an individual security doesn't change. For example, money market funds are fixed priced, and generally trade at $10 per unit. The income from these funds is not based on the price—it is based upon a percentage value earned by the fund. Because the price never fluctuates, these funds are not priced from within Quicken.

Where do the prices come from?

The prices for Canadian mutual funds that you receive within Quicken are provided by CANNEX Financial Exchanges. CANNEX is an independent third-party provider who gathers, compiles, and distributes interest rate and product information for a variety of retail financial products offered by financial institutions in Canada, the United States, and Australia.
